

Susanne → Samsung Galaxy Note 5

Susanne works in public relations and is constantly attached to her Samsung smartphone. She's always on the phone with her clients and friends and uses quite a lot of data, especially when she's travelling around the country to meet her clients. Susanne is pretty good at keeping it in bundle and at the start of 2015 spent around R2 100 per month. Susanne received her Samsung Galaxy Note 5 on her contract which expires in 12 months.

Dineo → Samsung Galaxy S7

Dineo is an attorney at a top law firm and uses her iPhone for work calls and email only. Given the nature of her job, Dineo uses a lot of minutes every month, but manages to keep her data use quite minimal. At the start of 2015 Dineo spent around R1700 per month. Dineo has a brand new Samsung Galaxy S7 and her contract still has 18 months to go.

Tshepo → iPhone 6S

Tshepo is a student at a prestigious Johannesburg high school and, like most teenagers, can't be separated from his top-of-the-range iPhone. Tshepo doesn't make many calls, but he does use a fortune of data, hooked as he is to social media and the latest apps. Tshepo has a iPhone 6S and would like to get the new iPhone when her contract expires in 6 months' time.

Howard → Sony Z5 Compact

Howard is a post-graduate university student who recently began paying for his own contract, which was previously paid for by his parents. Howard had the same contract for the past 6 years, only ever upgrading to get the newest smartphone. Howard's usage is fairly average and at the start of 2015 he spent an average of R800 per month. Howard has a Sony Z5 compact and has 12 months left on his contract.
